Since 2020, the Diversity and Inclusivity Committee has promoted this annual event as a way to increase participation from OHBM members from all around the world so that they can share their love for science with the next generation of neuroscientists. We also aim to promote family-friendly activities during OHBM 2025. This is a timely event as it removes language barriers that typically prohibit some members of OHBM from giving oral presentations. We are proposing a one-hour event, in which the goal is to communicate science to kids attending OHBM together with their parents (who live locally or are the children of scientists who attend OHBM), help them develop critical thinking, and actively engage them in the scientific process.
